BACKGROUND

In "elegant" script, Robert Getty wrote in his Bible that he was born "in the village of Maydown, County Derry, Kingdom of Ireland." How did he happen to come to America? Mildred Getty, in her biography of her grandfather, George Washington Getty, states that she was told that Robert Getty and a young brother were brought to America by their sister in 1788; that the brother died, and the sister returned to Ireland after Robert completed his education in Philadelphia. (1) (2)

The D.A.R. Library has a copy of a record from another Getty Bible, owned by descendants in northern Maryland, of Francis Getty, born 8/12/1777 in Armaugh, Ireland. Mr. J. Frank Getty, mayor of Manchester, Md., very kindly wrote of his family, saying that Francis Getty went to sea at the age of 14, was married in Boston, and died June 26, 1843, in Baltimore. Armaugh, like Maydown, is in the north of Ireland; our ancestor was born in 1780; and Francis is said to have had a brother Robert and one other brother. It is not impossible, but it is difficult, to see a connection between two Getty families who lived only 40 miles apart at the time of the deaths of Robert (1842) and Francis (1843), but left no indication that they knew of each other. There is evidence of correspondence between one of Francis' descendants and one of Robert's (in Carr Getty's family); but no evidence that a relationship was discovered. Robert Getty is supposed to have taught mathematics in a Pennsylvania college before coming to Georgetown (2), and said to have been in business with a cousin, Andrew Ross, before going into the government service (from a sketch of General G. W. Getty's life in a book of biographies, and probably emanating from him). Robert Getty witnessed the will of Andrew Ross, a trustee of Georgetown Presbyterian Church, in 1822 (D.C. Gen. Rec. Comm., D.A.R., 1948-50 Rept., Vol. 148, p. 76). In 1806, William Irwin of Georgetown named "Friend Robert Getty of Georgetown" executor of his will (D.C. Gen. Rec. Comm., D.A.R., 1945-46 Rept., Vol. 129, p. 69).

Also written into the family Bible by Robert Getty, were the birthdate and birthplace of Margaret Wilmot; and the date of their marriage. In a contemporary issue of The Maryland Gazette of Annapolis, was an article telling of the marriage of "the amiable" Miss Margaret Wilmot "of this city" on Tuesday evening, by the Reverend Mr. Judd. The Maryland Diocesan Historian furnished the rector's first name, Bethel, and the name of the church, St. Anne's (Episcopal). The lineage of Margaret Wilmot has been traced to John Wilmot I, who married Hannah Mayo (née Searson) in 1723; he was at the time registrar of All Hallows Church (Birdsville, near Annapolis); he and Hannah lived at the head of the South River. John I was later registrar of St. Anne's Church in Annapolis, and master of a school near Church Circle. John S., only son of Hannah and John, was born 7/7/1726. Called a "planter," he married Dinah Brewer, daughter of John Brewer IV and Eleanor Maccubbin. Their oldest child was born in 1751, their son John 12/21/1752. (Births recorded in All Hallows Par. Reg.) John II died after 1779, Dinah in 1793. John III, by record and family tradition a merchant, furnished supplies for the Continental Ship Defense in 1777*, and could have been the John Wilmot who carried express letters and handled money for the Committee of Safety in the Revolutionary War years, as recorded in the Maryland Archives. John III leased a house in Annapolis in 1788, but it is likely that he and his wife Ann --- had lived there earlier. John IV, their son, was born there in 1778 (Culver, Hist. Sketches of the Militia of Md.); an older child, Elizabeth, was married at St. Anne's in 1800, to Joseph N. N. Brewer (see GARDNER GETTY). The father of the family died in 1807; Ann, the mother, lived until 1852. The youngest daughter was Emily, and other possible children mentioned in local records were Nancy and Henry; and in a family letter, George (7). There are no birth records; but Margaret, John, and Elizabeth's children signed releases to Emily Wilmot as heirs of Ann Wilmot in 1852 (A. A. Co. Deed Book, SH 22 - 370).

*A descendant has been accepted for membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution on the basis of this service; see p. 23, 4v., 5i.

Margaret Getty's obituary notice stated that she "belonged to one of the oldest families in the state of Maryland, being directly descended from the distinguished English family of that name. Her ancestors came to this country with Lord Baltimore under a charter for the original settlement of Maryland." As far as the Wilmot connection is concerned, the latter statement has not been proved. There are records of John Wilmots in Calvert County in wills and in Maryland Archives of the 17th Century, sometimes in connection with Lord Baltimore; but they have yet to be connected with the Anne Arundel County family. Margaret's obituary may have referred to the ancestors of Dinah Brewer, a direct descendant of John Brewer I, one of the "Puritan Colony" that went from Massachusetts to Virginia, and on to Maryland to found the city of Provincetown (Annapolis). A grandmother of Dinah Brewer Wilmot, Dinah Battee, was a daughter of a colonial official, Fernando Battee; both he and John Brewer, also an official, held land grants and their commissions from Lord Baltimore.

Robert Getty was a staunch Presbyterian, and Margaret joined that church upon her marriage to him. According to her obituary, she was a faithful member until her death; but according to Christ Episcopal Church Parish Register, she was received back as an Episcopalian 11/5/1843 (3). The Getty children were raised strictly, according to the tenets of the Presbyterian Church. Evidence shows that most of them later joined other churches, and that most of their descendants now living are either Episcopalians or Roman Catholics.

The three Getty girls who grew up, married army officers; most of the facts that have come to us about Anne Eliza and Margaret Jane, are related to their husbands' careers. One of the sons, and a son and a grandson of his, became generals. Two sons who died in early manhood, had sought careers in the Navy Department or Navy; Robert Henry Getty, starting as a midshipman, might have risen as high in rank as many others whose records are written in the ledger containing his.

It will be seen that the Gettys owned a piano. Charles Edward and Carr Getty, the second son and the eighth, seem to have been very close in youth, and very similar in tastes and characteristics: loving music, nature, and people, and giving warmth and affection in return for their enjoyment.

Robert Getty is said to have excelled in mathematics; among his descendants are accountants, bank employees, civil engineers and ballistic experts. Margaret Wilmot's greatgrandfather was a schoolmaster; among her descendants are a college librarian, and some outstanding teachers. Her grandfather was a planter, and her descendants in the West include many ranchers. Her father was a merchant, connected with the sea; and Getty descendants number among them many merchants, and many men connected with the sea.

An attempt to count the known descendants of Robert and Margaret indicates that there have been at least six hundred offspring of the seven children known to have had families. Of these, over three hundred and fifty are living today, mostly in the eastern and far western sections of the United States. The largest families are those of Charles Edward Getty, Sr., living mostly in Oregon and California; and of John Hutchinson Carr Getty, living mostly in the northwestern section of Maryland, where he settled.

ROBERT GETTY, THE ANCESTOR

Robert Getty, b. in the village of Maydown, (London)derry County, Ireland, 8/1/1780, d. Georgetown, D.C., 12/14/1842 (1), also Obituary

m. St. Anne's Church, Annapolis, Md., 12/27/1808, Margaret Wilmot, b. Annapolis, Md., 2/26/1789, dau. John Wilmot and Ann ---, d. Georgetown, D.C., 4/9/1873 (1), also Anne Arundel Co. Mar. Rec. 1777-1813, p. 98; A. A. Co. Deed Book, SH 22 -370; (4), also Obituary.

Robert Getty was listed in Fed. Emp. Reg., 1819, as "Clerk in the 4th Auditor's Off., Navy Dept., b. Ireland, salary $1,150 p.a." According to his obituary, he held the same position when he died in 1842. He was serving as Justice of the Peace in 1837 (see ROBERT HENRY GETTY). The Journal of Trustees of the Georgetown Presbyterian Church shows that Robert Getty was a member of the board of trustees in 1823, 1824, 1837, 1838 and 1842; he served on various committees, and owned a pew (D.C. Gen. Rec. Comm., D.A.R., Rept., Vol. 75).

Tradition in the George Washington Getty family held Robert Getty to be a kindly and affectionate father, who brought each of his children a gingerbread horse as a Saturday evening treat; but raised them in strict observance of the Sabbath (2). A miniature of him, possibly painted at the time of his marriage, shows him to be a handsome and pleasant-looking person. His obituary notice states that "he had walked to his office in the neighboring city" (Washington) "according to his wont, in apparent good health and spirits. In the course of the day, he was seized with a stroke of paralysis, and shortly after being brought home...he breathed his last... His character was such as placed him in the first rank for public, social and individual worth, and he must have resigned the world without leaving an enemy in it." It is not known where Robert Getty was buried; but presumably it was in the Presbyterian graveyard, from which all bodies were removed some years ago.

Robert Getty left no will. The articles in his estate are listed in the Register of Wills Office, D.C., #2379 O.S. They include much furniture, carpets, pictures, a piano, linens, china, glassware, kitchen utensils, andirons, a fender, silverware, "a dry cow, $5.00," and "one servant Mammie and child, $300.00." The appraisers were E. Brewer and Lawrence M. Morton. Charles E. and Robert H. Getty certified that they were present at the taking of the inventory. The value of the total listing was $926.76.

Margaret Getty continued to live at their house, at #31 Dumbarton Street, and was buried from there. On April 11, 1873, Annie Laub Getty McClure wrote her mother (wife of George Washington Getty), ..."Returned from poor dear old Grandma's funeral. She was so deaf, and being very sensitive, life was not a pleasure to her...She was buried from the house (which is so inaccessible)... Mr. Williams read the prayers, and the Presbyterian minister made a few appropriate remarks" (5).

After the death of Margaret Getty, the heirs were unable to come to an agreement as to the disposition of the property, and Gardner Getty and Betty, and Charles H. Laub and Anne Eliza brought suit against Charles Getty; Edmund Brooke, Spencer Watkins and Maria, Richard Vedder and Annie (heirs of Emily Brooke); George W. Getty and Elizabeth; H. Carr Getty and Elizabeth (sic); and Vernon Getty; urging the sale of the property, claiming it had been left in untenantable condition by street improvements. The court ordered the sale to be held in October of 1873. Gardner bought the property for $2,000, but died before the sale was consummated. The property was resold to J. Holdsworth Gordon for $1,705, December 19, 1873. Each heir's portion was $168.08 after deduction of expenses (7 portions). All heirs signed receipts. On March 3, 1875, W. D. Cassin, attorney, of Georgetown, one of the trustees appointed in the suit, wrote General Getty that he had had a claim allowed for $1,200 for damage to "the old homestead," by the District of Columbia government. He asked to be appointed administrator, and apparently was, for Eliza Getty, Vernon's widow, wrote his nephew Robert Wilmot Getty about the distribution of the money in 1888 (she was unhappy about it!) ANNE ELIZA GETTY (2 - i)

Anne Eliza Getty, b. Georgetown, D.C., 10/20/1809, at "half past seven in the evening," d. Georgetown (Washington, D.C.) 9/24/1880 (1) (4), Lot #486

m. "at the home of her father," in Georgetown, D.C., by the Rev. Stephen Bloomer Balch (Presbyterian), 1/17/1833, Charles Henry Laub, M.D., b. Georgetown, D.C., 11/7/1805, d. Washington, D.C., 12/2/1876, s. John Laub and Martha Millar (4), Lot #486 (8) (Pens. appl., Rec. Gr. #15, WC 176304) (see also The Laub Family, compiled by Harlan A. Laub, Erie, Pa., 1963)

Charles H. Laub's papers in Rec. Gr. #15, Nat'l Arch., indicate that he studied medicine at Columbia Medical College (now George Washington University), and practiced medicine in the District of Columbia and perhaps for a time in Vincennes, Ind., before, in April 1836, he sought appointment in the Medical Corps of the Army. He was appointed Asst. Surgeon, U.S.A., in 1836, and reported to Fort Monroe, Va. He attained the rank of Major and Surgeon 10/17/1854, was brevetted Lt. Col. 4/13/1865, for "faithful and meritorious service during the War;" and became Lt. Col. and Asst. Med. Purveyor 6/26/1876 (Hamersly, Army Reg. of the U.S., D.C., 1880, p. 571). Major Laub served in the Seminole, Mexican and Civil Wars. He was at Fort Winnebago, Wisc. Territory, 1839-45; and in Florida in 1849; sailed from New York to California "around the Horn" on a troopship, arriving in Benicia in 1853; was later stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco, and then at Fort Vancouver, Wash. Territory, until 1857. His "fondly attached wife" wrote Jefferson Davis, Secretary of War, asking that he be sent home. During the Civil War, he was Medical Director at Washington, and Medical Director of the Army of the Tennessee under General Grant, before being invalided home with dysentery. He became Attending Surgeon, Secretary and Treasurer of Soldiers' Home in Washington; he and his family lived on the spacious grounds of the Home, and he died there in 1876, of exhaustion following paralysis. Letters and family tales relate of visits to the Laubs at Soldiers' Home. "Dr." Laub was one of the attending physicians when Margaret Wilmot Getty died (5) (7). (For Letters of Administration of the estate of Charles H. Laub, see #7943 O.S., Rec. Gr. #21, Nat'l Arch.)

The Laubs were in Georgetown at the time of Margaret's birth in December 1835. It is more than likely that Anne Eliza and Margaret joined Dr. Laub at Fort Winnebago, Wisc. Territory, in 1839-45, since the second and third children, born in 1842 and 1844, were not baptized until 1848, when Dr. Laub was in Georgetown; and the third child was named for the Neenah River in Wisconsin. The family was in Florida in 1849; Margaret used to tell her grandchildren about the deer an Indian chief gave her to raise as a pet; and Mildred Getty's aunt, Annie Laub Getty, was born at the Laubs' home while her father was stationed at Fort Brooke, Fla. It is possible that the Laub family travelled to other posts, but no evidence that they did.

In her pension application, Anne Eliza Laub's residence was given as 86 First (now N) Street, Georgetown (12/20/1876). By the terms of her will, witnessed by Holdsworth Gordon, Jesse H. Wilson and Franck D. Johns, Anne Eliza Laub divided her estate equally between her daughters Margaret W. Davidson, Clara M. Noyes, Louisa L. (sic) Welch, and Nannie Walsh, and her granddaughter Neenah Tipton Simpson. On a small sheet of paper, in her own handwriting, was a list of such personal belongings as she wished each of the legatees to have; although she had stated in her will that she had "heretofore given unto her children and to her granddaughter Neenah Tipton Simpson, various articles as evidence of (her) love and affection for them." William A. Gordon was appointed executor of her will, written 4/4/1879, proved 10/1/1880 (D.C. Wills).

MARGARET JANE GETTY (2 - ii)

Margaret Jane Getty, b. Georgetown, D.C., 11/27/1811, "at six o'clock in the morning," d. Madison Barracks, Sackett's Harbor, Lake Ontario, N.Y., 3/17/1839 (1) (12)

m. Georgetown, D.C., 4/21/1836, Lt. Thomas H. Johns, U.S.A., b. Georgetown, D.C., 3/5/1812, d. 6/17/1882, s. Leonard Hollyday Johns and Margaret Ann Williams (8) (12)

No record has been found of any children of the marriage of Margaret Getty and Thomas H. Johns.

Thomas Johns entered West Point from the District of Columbia 7/1/1829, graduated 7/1/1833, and was commissioned 2nd Lieutenant, U.S. Infantry, 7/31/1836, becoming 1st Lieutenant 7/7/1838. He resigned from the Army 1/31/1841, and joined the Maryland Mining Company, Allegany County, Md. He later opened a hardware store in Cumberland. (Possibly his sister, Margaret Caroline Johns, went to live with him there; (see CHARLES EDWARD GETTY).) On 10/11/1842, Thomas Johns was married a second time, to Mary Martha Magruder. Their daughter Rebecca married George Espy Anderson of Bedford, Pa.; children of this marriage were Espy L. Anderson, Louise H. Anderson, and Thomas J. Anderson, attorney and U.S. Commissioner. Thomas Johns was commissioned Colonel of the 2nd Md. Infantry, P.H.B., 10/10/1861; he resigned because of ill health before the close of the Civil War. He retired from business in 1872; he was said to have been "a gentleman of the old school," and a man of honor. (12)

JOHN WILMOT GETTY (2 - iii)

John Wilmot Getty, b. 8/3/1813, "at half-past twelve in the afternoon," d. Havana, Cuba, 2/8/1838 (1); of yellow fever (family paper)

No record has been found of a marriage of John Wilmot Getty.

Apparently he was a civilian employee of the Navy Department. There is no record of his service available at the Naval Archives Section, National Archives. He never received a commission. It has been impossible to discover why he went to Havana.

In 1840, Robert Getty, "father and only heir," filed an account of his estate in the District of Columbia Orphans' Court, as follows: Navy Department "salery," $153.21; wearing apparel worth $50.00. (#2104 O.S.; in Nat'l Archives)

CHARLES EDWARD GETTY (2 - iv)

Charles Edward Getty, b. Georgetown, D.C., 8/7/1815, at "8 o'clock in the morning," d. Empire City, Ore., 12/8/1877 (1) (7)

m., 1st, Cumberland, Md., 9/20/1842 (license 9/17/1842, Rec. Clerk of Circuit Court, Allegany County, Md.), Margaret Caroline Johns, b. Georgetown, D.C., 8/28/1821, d. Frostburg, Md., 9/3/1853, dau. Leonard Hollyday Johns and Margaret Ann Williams (1) (7)
m., 2nd, Midland, Md., 1/29/1857, Elizabeth Koontz, b. 12/ /1822, d. 4/9/1858, sister-in-law of John Hutchinson Carr Getty (1) (18)

Charles Edward Getty is said to have "worked for his uncles, the Wilmot Brothers (wine merchants, of Annapolis), when he first left home" (7). Though John Wilmot, Charles' grandfather, was a merchant and shipowner before his death in 1807, it has not been possible to identify "the Wilmot Brothers," or the "wine business;" John Wilmot's son John was said to have been "in the mercantile business" after the War of 1812 (Culver, Hist. Sketches of the Militia of Md.); and there is evidence that the father dealt in rum in 1776 (Rev. Papers, Box 2, fol. 1B, #3, Hall of Records, Annapolis, Md.). No early directory of Annapolis has been found; nor any advertisements for the Wilmot Brothers in issues of The Maryland Gazette.

Charles Edward Getty witnessed the appraisal of the furnishings of the Getty home after his father's death in December 1842 (see ROBERT GETTY). His daughter Fannie was born in Georgetown in 1844; at that time, "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Getty" were listed as communicants of Christ Church, Georgetown (3), indicating residence in Georgetown after their marriage in Cumberland. Before the birth of Robert Wilmot in 1846, the Charles Edward Gettys had moved to Barton, Md., where he became purchasing agent for the Consolidated Coal Company. John Hutchinson Carr Getty joined his brother in the area, to become bookkeeper for the same company, at a later date. Four years after Margaret C. Getty's death from childbirth, Charles Getty married Elizabeth Koontz, and Carr Getty married her sister Darkus, in a double wedding ceremony (18). Elizabeth Getty died in childbirth the following year. According to letters and family tradition, at some time during this period, possibly 1856-7, the two older children were in boarding school, Fannie at Ingleside, and Robert Wilmot in St. Timothy's Episcopal (military) School, nearby. Just where the schools were, is not not known; but there was a St. Timothy's Military School in back of St. Timothy's Church in Catonsville, Md. (near Baltimore), before and during the Civil War. Fannie's grandchildren have heard, also, that "she walked by the Capitol on her way to school" (southeast Washington); and she mentioned in a letter written in 1922 "visiting Grandma Johns" (perhaps in Georgetown, northwest Washington) "after (she) came back from Ingleside."

Charles Edward Getty, deciding to leave his unhappy memories behind him, joined a party headed by Binger and Tom Hermann, en route from Baltimore to the West Coast; Mrs. Tom Holland (as housekeeper for the Gettys), and her husband, went along. There is some evidence that certain members of the group, including Charles Getty and a Mr. White, bought the boat in which they sailed. Some of the party, probably including the Getty children, were put ashore at Vera Cruz, Mexico, whence they made their way by pack train to the vicinity of Acapulco. Household goods, and the rest of the party, went by boat around the Horn. The ones crossing Central America went on to San Francisco by sea; there the Gettys lived for a time, the father running a flower shop in the Palace Hotel. In the summer of 1859, they set sail for Oregon, landing at Port Orford; Fannie was said to be the first white woman to land there. The ship carrying the Gettys' goods was wrecked on Coos Bay Bar, and all their farm tools were lost, and all books except a Bible, a French history, and a volume of Shakespeare. The young Robert Wilmot Getty read them again and again in the family cabin in the Coquille Valley, where he was taught by the Indians to hunt, trap, and handle a canoe.

The Gettys' life in Oregon is a pioneer saga. Charles, travelling with a group to Roseburg to stake out land claims, stopped to help a man with a broken leg, and found when he reached the county seat that one of his companions had "jumped" his claim. For a while, Charles cooked in logging camps. In the 1870's, in the first plastered home with running water in the town of Empire, he ran a samll hotel or boarding house in the harbor city, then the county seat, catering to persons en route to and from the inland mines and ranches, and to jurymen and lawyers when court was in session. The small community was dependent on the metropolis of San Francisco for suits of clothing, hats, and supplies such as Charles needed for the boarding house. Charles' letters to his son Robert Wilmot, then in San Francisco, reflect his love of flowers (he had a small greenhouse), and tell of the cats, canaries and cows, and of his chickens, and his attempts to hatch various kinds of eggs. He is said to have planted most of the orchards in the Coquille Valley. Charles sold plants, and sent flowers to the ships' captains, who are often mentioned in his letters. He played the violin, and led an orchestra. Apparently his home was a gathering place for the congenial persons of the community; his obituary notice tells of his popularity, as a kind and genial host, with "hospitality from the heart." His strength never seemed to equal the demands he put upon it. When his daughter sent for him after the birth of her seventh child, he set out by boat and on foot to reach the "Warner Homestead," near the present town of Broadbent, and across the river from the Gettys' cabin built in 1859. Charles lost his way, spending a night of anguished discomfort in the woods; he felt he was a "goner." In the morning, he followed the creek to the river, came out at a clearing, and got directions for reaching the ferry. Arriving near Fannie's, he borrowed a grandson at the schoolhouse, and thus came to her home. In love and sympathy, Charles tried to do for Fannie, who had her hands full with an infant and six other children, three not yet in school. The effort he put forth, together with the strain of his trip, had such a bad effect on Charles' health, that he did not recover for a month. He wrote Robert Wilmot that the care of his boarding house, and the heavy work (laundering, cooking for large groups, gardening, sewing), were "working him almost to death." When he rode horseback to the wedding of his son Charles, Jr., in 1874, "it almost killed (him), for three days every bone in (his) body ached." With two lady guests, he returned on a boat, "a great relief." Apparently Charles, Sr., was in failing health for several years; he complained of fainting spells and weariness. On the 7th of August, 1875, his 60th birthday was celebrated with a surprise party given him by the townspeople. Two years before his death, he suffered a paralytic stroke and was invalided. Confined to a wheelchair, he did needlepoint and other fancy work to occupy his time. He died on December 8, 1877, at the age of 62. (7) (15)

+ Buried at Warner Homestead
* Born at Warner Homestead
 Coquille Valley is now called Broadbent

The first home of FANNIE AND CALVIN WARNER was a cabin beside the Coquille River; the land had been bought from the original settler in 1861. Later, Calvin built on rising ground the large house known as "the Warner Homestead." The living quarters were on the first floor, and the second floor was a hall for the public dances attended by ranchers from miles around. "Cal" was a famous fiddler. As the Warner family grew, the second floor was turned into bedrooms. Some of the descendants of Selden Warner, the oldest son, still live and work on the old homestead. "The house still stands as a landmark, and is very well-preserved and comfortable, in spite of its age," writes one of them. During the early twentieth century, Selden and William, the fourth child, bought out the other heirs, except for David Henry, who farmed his "strip." John, Ernest, Horace, Mollie and Jessie Warner went to Walla Walla, Washington, where a sister of their father's lived. John and Ernest died there; but Mollie, Jessie and Horace returned to Oregon. Fannie Getty, greatly loved by her grandchildren, is remembered as a beautiful and talented woman, expert at needlework, particularly crochet. Like many pioneer women, she acted as a midwife assisting at the birth of her neighbors' children; she never failed to answer a call for help, no matter how weary. She spent her last years on a ranch near Myrtle Point, owned by herself and her son Horace, who lived with her. Fannie "died peacefully, in her sleep."

ROBERT WILMOT GETTY had a varied career, building roads, operating feed and hardware stores, working in shipyards and as a labor organizer. Having inherited his father's love of music, he enjoyed the opera; and also Shakesperean plays. He first saw his future wife as she arrived in Empire as a girl of ten. Many of the letters of Eliza Getty were written to him and his wife (see VERNON GETTY).

CHARLES EDWARD GETTY, JR., first worked as a carpenter and shipbuilder near Empire, was later a rancher at Rocky Point; he is said to have introduced cranberry growing to Oregon. Charles Edward, Jr., owned one of the first automobiles in his area. His father's letters to Wilmot tell of "Charlie's" courtship of "Joey," and their marriage. In 1912, he and his wife went to San Francisco so that he might recuperate from an operation; there he died. (7)

The available records of the Brooke family and its descendants have a tendency to confuse, especially when taken into consideration with family letters and recollections. No help is available from a member of the family in the present generation. The records are presented first. (All references from Christ Church and St. John's Par. Reg. are in (3) (St. John's in Part 1))

Edmund Brooke (deceased) was on the "Earliest List of Communicants" of Christ Church, Georgetown (about 1820)

Mr. Edmund Brooke was buried 4/22/1857, p. 50 (Should this be Mrs.--?)

On July 9, 1847, E. H. Brooke wrote to the Navy Department regarding the death of Midshipman Robert H. Getty (see ROBERT H. GETTY).

In 1873, E. H. Brooke, his daughters Maria and Annie, and sons-in-law Spencer Watkins and Richard Vedder, were defendants in the case of Getty vs. Getty, as heirs of Emily Getty Brooke, deceased. Colonel Brooke and the Vedders were said to be living in Kansas. Ella Vedder was mentioned in connection with the receipt of payment (probably a mistake). (6)

The oldest daughter, Maria Watkins, was said to have visited her half-brother Howard, in Detroit, Mich., in 1906; she and Annie Vedder were mentioned a number of times in the letters of Eliza Getty and others; Annie Watkins' wedding was mentioned also. (7) Annie Vedder, a widow, and her grandnephews, Spencer and DeVere Burr, are remembered as of about 1906; and Annie Watkins Burr, as a charming, well-bred woman in the late 1920's. The large farm owned by Spencer and Maria Watkins was near the site of the present Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School; the house was removed to make way for the East-West Highway, in Bethesda, Md. GEORGE WASHINGTON GETTY (2 - vi)

George Washington Getty, b. Georgetown, D.C., 10/2/1819, at "forty minutes after nine o'clock in the morning," d. Forest Glen, Md., 10/1/1901 (1)

m. Staunton, Va., 12/19/1848, by the Rev. Robert Nelson (Episcopal clergyman), Elizabeth Graham Stevenson, b. Staunton, Va., 3/29/1828, d. Washington, D.C., 7/25/1913, dau. Levi Lamb Stevenson and Elizabeth Dunlap (1) (2)

George Washington Getty was graduated from the United States Military Academy in June 1840. He served first in Michigan, then at Fort Monroe, Va., in 1842 and 1848. While on recruiting duty in Staunton, Va., he met his future wife. He served in the Mexican War, 1847-48, and in Florida in 1849-50 and 1857, and west of the Mississippi 1858-59. He was an artillery officer in Washington, D.C., and with the Army of the Potomac in the Maryland campaign in 1862. Appointed Brigadier General of Volunteers, 9/25/1862, he commanded the 3rd Division, 9th Army Corps, in 1863, and a division of the Department of Virginia to 1/27/1864. General Getty was Acting Inspector General of the Army of the Potomac to 3/18/1864. He was wounded and reported killed in the Battle of the Wilderness, 5/6/1864, and recovering from the wound until 6/12/1864. He commanded the Second Division, 6th Corps, to 6/28/1865, and the First Division, Provisional Corps to 7/18/1865. He was made Major General of Volunteers, 8/1/1864; brevet Major General 3/13/1865; Colonel, Regular Army, 7/28/1866. Colonel Getty was sent to the Territory of New Mexico 4/27/1867, served in the Army of Occupation, Charleston, S.C., to 10/19/1872, and then at Fort Hamilton, N.Y. His last post was Fort Monroe, Va. He retired as full colonel 10/2/1883. (2)

Colonel Getty, having been sent with troops to the Cumberland area at the time of a strike against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in 1877, was given a life pass by the railroad in recognition of his service. He frequently used this pass to visit his brother Carr in Westernport, Md. (2) (18)

Elizabeth Stevenson Getty went with her husband to Florida in 1849, and stayed with her sister-in-law, Anne Eliza Laub, while her husband was away pursuing the Seminole Indians. As the family grew, they accompanied the father to various posts, until the outbreak of the Civil War, when they went to Georgetown to stay with Margaret Wilmot Getty. In 1868, Colonel Getty's family joined him in New Mexico. When they left Santa Fe en route to Charleston, S.C., they visited Elizabeth Getty's brother John Stevenson in St. Louis. From Charleston, the family went to Fort Hamilton, N.Y., and then to Fort Monroe. (2)

Before leaving his last post, Colonel Getty bought a farm in Maryland, then in Forest Glen, but now part of Silver Spring. Older members of the family married and moved away, but George and his family stayed on the farm, a haven of peace and plenty in the last years of Colonel Getty's life. The old house has since been sold and torn down; the Colonel's granddaughter, two grandsons and a greatgrandson live in a smaller house nearby.

Colonel Getty in 1901 suffered an illness of unknown nature and duration, and died on October the first. He had the longest life span of any member of the Getty family except his mother, who lived for 84 years; the Colonel for 82. John Hutchinson Carr Getty, the last of the family to die, was 79. Colonel Getty was buried in Arlington National Cemetery, with full military honors, including an honor guard of foot soldiers, who marched the long way from Silver Spring, Md., through Washington and across to Virginia. GARDNER THOMAS GETTY (2 - x)

Gardner Thomas Getty, b. Georgetown, D.C., 10/30/1825, at "eleven o'clock in the morning," conf. 6/25/1855, d. Georgetown, D.C., 11/3/1873 (1) (3) (4)

m. Georgetown, D.C., 10/28/1852, (Harriet Elizabeth) Bettie Brewer, b. Georgetown, D.C., 3/ /1830, d. Washington, D.C., 11/11/1915, dau. Edward Brewer, M.D., b. Maryland 1804, and Susannah Brooke, b. Pr. Wm. County, Va., 1/10/1807 (1) (3) (4); Census of 1850, D.C., p. 160; D.C. Mar. Rec.; and Bur. Vital Statistics, D.C.

(Elizabeth Wilmot, daughter of Ann and John Wilmot, and elder sister of Margaret Wilmot Getty, married Joseph N. N. Brewer, and became the mother of Ann (e) M., Edward, and Henry W. Brewer; thus Bettie Brewer was Margaret Getty's grandniece as well as her daughter-in-law. Anne M. Brewer never married, lived in Georgetown at least part of the time, and attended Christ Church. She and the Gardner Gettys were living with Margaret Getty in 1870 (APPENDIX,

p. 43). In 1880 (A. A. County Census, p. 234), Anne was living with Emily Wilmot in Annapolis; in 1886, she was the beneficiary of Emily's will (JWB #43, f 151). Her own will, proved 7/1/1889 (D.C. Wills), bequeathed to her nephews and nieces, children of Henry W., who married Susan Jones, and of Edward Brewer.)

Gardner Thomas Getty, called "Gardner" or "Tom" and also "Thomas Gardner Getty," is listed in the Official Directory of 1853 as "Clerk, Pension Off., salary $333 p.a." In the Census of 1860, p. 147, he is listed as a clerk (he and "H.E." living with her parents); and in the Georgetown Directory for 1860, as "Getty, Thos., clk Pension Off., bds. 31 Dumbarton" (his mother's house). Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Getty were listed as communicants of Christ Church in 1855 and in 1858 (3).
Tom's letters to his brother, George W. Getty, show that he was in later life proprietor of a stationery store in Georgetown. Apparently he, in common with many others in the 1870's, had money troubles. At the time of Margaret Getty's illness and death, Tom wrote his brother frequently. It was said that he bore the entire cost of his mother's funeral, $200; and that "Cousin Anne, Cousin Mardie (Davidson) and Aunt Bettie" had nursed Margaret Getty "faithfully;" so wrote Annie Getty McClure to her mother Elizabeth Stevenson Getty (see GEORGE WASHINGTON GETTY). Tom died of paralysis just as the suit, Getty vs. Getty, was settled. Bettie considered buying and repairing the old home on which Tom had bid successfully; and was advised to run the store with her brother as manager; but eventually, both home and store were sold. (5) (6)
In 1882, "Harriet E." Getty, "sewing," was listed at 3220 N Street, N.W., in the Washington, D.C., Directory. In 1883 to 1888, she lived at 3219 Q Street, N.W., with her daughter Neenah. In 1891, "Harriet E." lived at 3318 O Street, N.W. Neenah was listed as a clerk in the Census Office from 1882 to 1888.

JOHN HUTCHINSON CARR GETTY (2 - xi)

John Hutchinson Carr Getty, b. Georgetown, D.C., 1/9/1828, d. Westernport, Md., 1/2/1907 (1) (18)

m. Midland, Md., 1/29/1857, (Darkus) Mary Catherine Koontz, b. Lonaconing, Md., 6/13/1837, d. Westernport, Md., 10/5/1916 (1) (18)

Apparently John Hutchinson Carr Getty left Georgetown to work as a bookkeeper in Barton, Md., where his brother Charles Edward was purchasing agent for the Consolidated Coal Company (see CHARLES EDWARD GETTY). On 1/29/1857, the two brothers in a double wedding ceremony married two Koontz sisters of Lonaconing, Md., Charles Edward marrying Elizabeth, and John Hutchinson Carr marrying Darkus. The first child of the latter union, Margaret Wilmot, was born in Barton, Md.; in 1860, the Carr Getty family moved to Westernport, Md., and the rest of their children were born in Westernport. In 1881, the home the Getty family was living in burned down, and they moved for a time to nearby Piedmont, W. Va., across the Potomac River from Westernport.

Before the Civil War, Carr Getty was employed as cashier of the Piedmont Savings Bank, Piedmont, Va. (the Piedmont section in 1863 became part of West Virginia). Carr was also agent for a time of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in Piedmont, carrying a pistol on the job, to protect the collections taken home, across the river to Westernport, for safekeeping.

Perhaps because he had expressed vocally his evident sympathy for the South, John Hutchinson Carr Getty was arrested and imprisoned by Federal troops at some time during the Civil War period. He was tried and acquitted in Cumberland, Md., before Colonel Lew Wallace, later a general and author of Ben Hur and other books. Another event of importance in the lives of the Gettys occurred at about the same time: Carr and Darkus, who had been a Lutheran, were converted to Catholicism, it may be because of the influence of a Miss Della Edwards of Baltimore, Md., and her maid, Kate Martin, who lived with the Getty family for a time. Darkus then took the name of Mary Catherine. Around the two circumstances, of imprisonment and conversion, have grown some family legends; but only these facts are evident.

Mary Catherine Getty inherited a considerable sum of money from a rich coal deposit on her father's farm near Lonaconing. On October 4, 1881, following the loss by fire of their home in Westernport, Mary Catherine and Carr acquired the Burns Lot, a parcel of two acres on Main and Church Streets in Westernport; and also "Mill Seat," consisting of 100 acres, in 1879; and various other properties. Mary Catherine, who had exceptional business ability, loaned and borrowed much of the money necessary to build, in 1870, the present Catholic Church in Westernport. On the Burns Lot on the corner of Main and Church Streets, the Gettys built a nine-bedroom house with a store on the first floor; and two lots on Main Street and seven on Church Street were given to the nine children. As of January 1965, three of the properties remained in the possession of heirs of original owners. The residences of Mary G. Walker, Joseph Pius Getty and Margaret Wilmot McKone are owned by Getty descendants.

John Hutchinson Carr Getty operated a general store in the Main and Church Street building for a time after 1881; but he eventually rented the store, while his family continued to occupy the home. He enjoyed gardening, entertaining his friends, and music; he was the organist at St. Peter's Church, both the old and new buildings, carrying his portable organ to and from the church. (18)

Accompanied by his daughter Annie, Carr Getty went to the funeral of his brother George Washington Getty in October 1901; Carr was "the last of thirteen." (7)

By the terms of her will, written 9/17/1907, probated 10/10/1916, Mary C. Getty bequeathed a piano to her daughter Beatrice Agnes, and to Margaret Wilmot McKone, John Frederick Getty, James Francis Getty, Mary Gertrude Walker, Joseph Pius Getty, Michael Alphonsus Getty, Beatrice Agnes Getty, Charles Wilmot Getty and Annie Delphine Farrell, her sons and daughters, all her real estate and personal property in equal shares. John Frederick and James Francis Getty were named executors. H. C. Walker and Joseph J. McKone were witnesses.

VERNON GETTY (2 - xiii)

Vernon Getty, b. Georgetown, D.C., 2/22/1832, "the centennial birthday of George Washington, Pater Patriae, at sunrise, when the cannon were firing in honor of the day" (named "Vernon" for "Mt. Vernon," since the sixth child had been named "George Washington"), d. San Francisco, California, 10/19/1876 (1) (7)*

m. 11/27/1867, Eliza Campbell Stevenson of Staunton, Va. (niece of Elizabeth Graham Stevenson; see GEORGE WASHINGTON GETTY), b. 8/17/1848, d. Washington, D.C., 5/30/1908 (1)*

Vernon Getty, listed in the 1850 Census (see p.43) as 17 years of age and a druggist, and in the D.C. Directory of 1860 as a clerk, was in 1872, according to a letter written to his brother Charles Edward in Oregon, Chief Paymaster of the Presidio in San Francisco. He still held that position at the time of his death in 1876. He and his wife were living in a boarding house at the corner of Market and Stockton Streets, in 1872. Vernon died very suddenly. He was buried in San Francisco, but later his remains were shipped to Staunton and reinterred. (7)

Vernon's widow, Eliza, wrote numerous letters to her husband's nephew, Robert Wilmot Getty (see CHARLES EDWARD GETTY), after leaving San Francisco for St. Louis, Mo., en route eventually to Washington, D.C., where she went to work for the Federal government. She was working in the Census Bureau in 1893; later her daughter Margie went to work in the same office. In 1905, Margie married James Boykin, an employee of the Bureau of Reclamation. In 1906, the Boykins were living in Hazen, Nev., where Robert Wilmot Getty's daughter Florence visited them. After the death of James Boykin, Margie returned to work in the government service, according to a letter sent to Julia Getty by Margie's sister Nancy. Nancy Getty went to "Normal School" in Washington, and became an outstanding teacher whose ability was recognized by everyone in the District of Columbia school system. She visited California, and renewed acquaintance with the family of Robert Wilmot Getty, before her death. (7)
